The cash pile and the finance arm cover the market value: the car business comes almost free

OVERWEIGHT

€36.00

base-case value, +28% vs €28.17

Renault trades at about €7.7bn while its car business holds €6.6bn of net cash and its captive bank earns roughly €1.5bn of operating profit a year. The market prices the 2026 margin trough as permanent; we think the reset is done and a product cycle is starting.

The balance sheet is the floor

Automotive net cash of €6.6bn at June 2026 equals about 86% of the market value. Mobilize Financial Services (the former RCI Banque) adds about €1.5bn of annual operating margin and pays dividends to the car business.

The reset is done

Guidance fell from at least 7% margin (early 2025) to about 5.5% for 2026. That guide was confirmed in February, July and October 2026, and the futuREady plan sets a 5-7% through-cycle band. Expectations are now low and credible.

A product cycle is starting futuREady plans 36 launches by 2030 on a two-year development cycle. Clio VI, Boreal, Twingo E-Tech and Duster are already on sale, and Q3 2026 revenue beat consensus (+1.4% at constant FX versus −0.3% expected).

Renault at a glance

Automotive (~88% of revenue)

Renault, Dacia and Alpine brands; a volume player in European B and C segments, with Dacia as the low-cost brand. 52% of European sales were electrified in H1 2026.

Mobilize Financial Services (~12%)

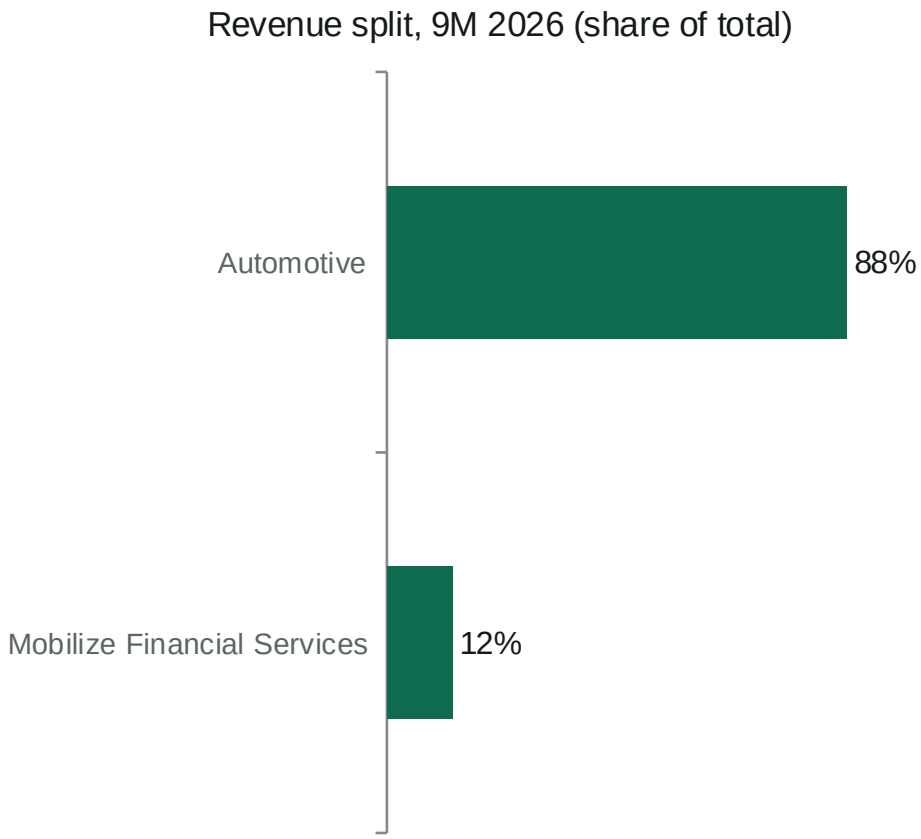

Captive car finance and leasing. Contributed €753m of operating margin in H1 2026 and pays dividends up to the car business (€250m in H1 2026, about €500m a year targeted).

Nissan stake

About 35% after the 2023-2025 Alliance restructuring, according to press reports. Carried at fair value through equity since June 2025.

Geography

No US sales, so US tariffs are a second-order risk. Growth markets are India, Turkey, Morocco and Brazil (Geely partnership in Brazil since September 2026).

What moves the stock beyond the company

–6.0%

European car demand

Group volumes in Q3 2026. European demand is flat and Chinese brands are gaining share in the low-cost segment where Dacia plays.

Middle East

Input costs

The 2026 Middle East conflict lifted raw-material, energy and logistics costs; management expects H2 margin only slightly above H1.

25.8%

EV transition

Share of electric cars in Q3 2026 passenger-car sales. EU CO2 rules force the mix shift and compress pricing.

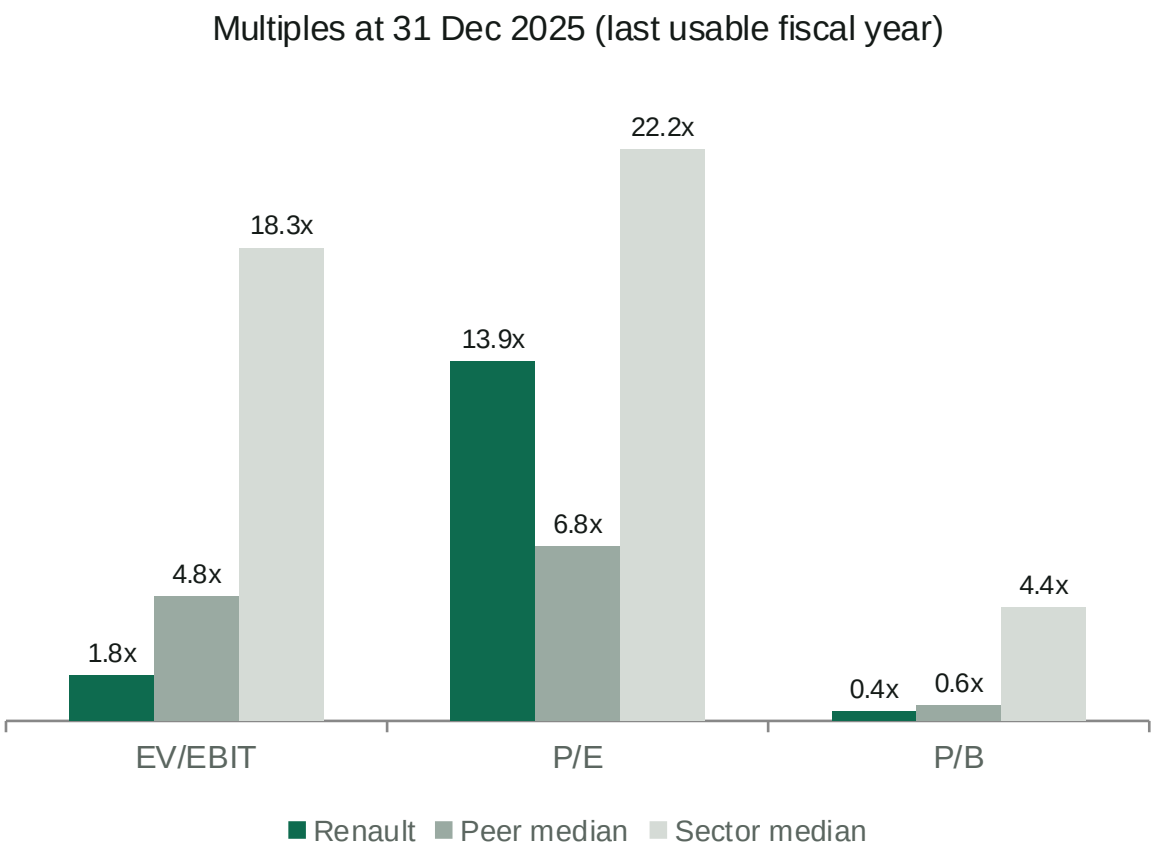

BBB–

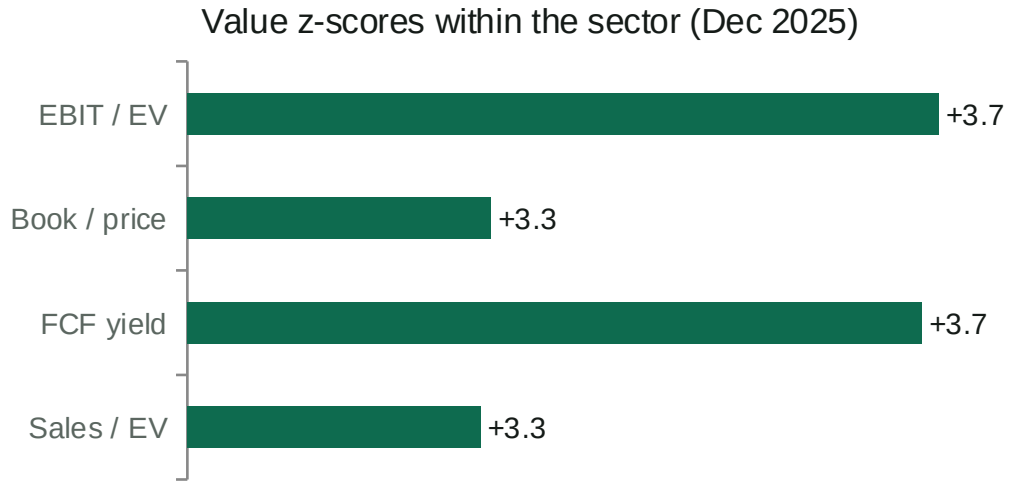

Rates and credit

Investment-grade rating (S&P, Dec 2025) lowers funding cost for Mobilize, whose margin depends on rates and used-car prices.

07 VARIANT PERCEPTION

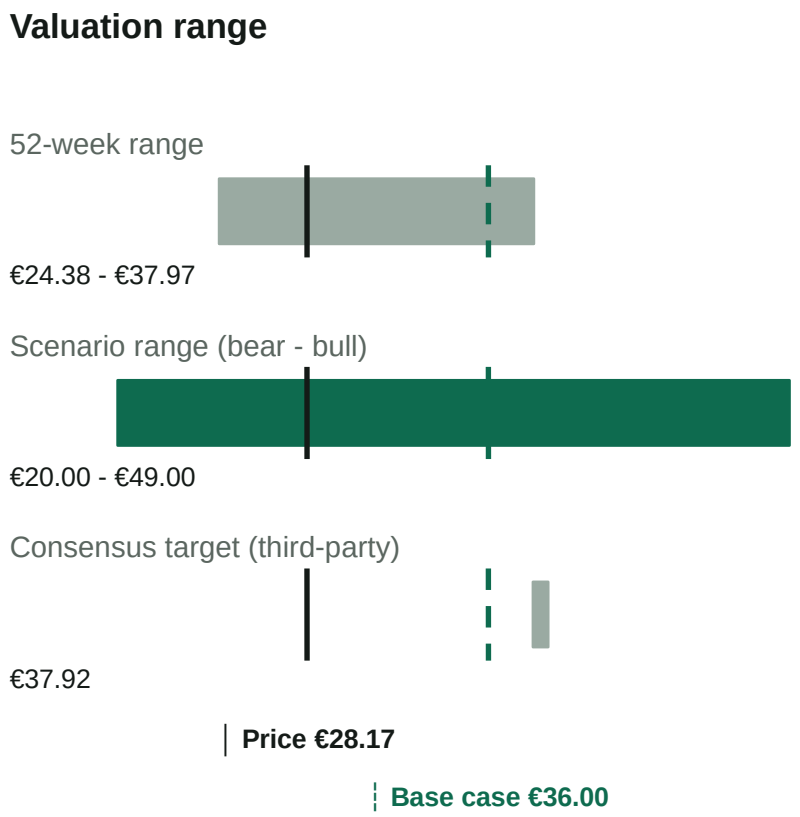

Where we differ from the market

WHAT THE MARKET BELIEVES	OUR VIEW
“Chinese competition will crush margins”	Volumes are under pressure, but pricing and mix held. The plan cuts variable cost by about €400 per car a year and development time to two years.
“The cash is trapped and will be burnt”	The car business generated €1.5bn of free cash flow in 2025, S&P upgraded Renault to investment grade (BBB−) in December 2025, and the €2.20 dividend was paid from that cash.
“Management keeps cutting guidance”	The new CEO reset targets once, in July 2025. The 2026 guide has since been confirmed three times.
“Nissan is a black hole”	The stake was written down by €9.3bn in 2025. Our valuation gives it no value, so any monetisation is upside.

Base-case value €36.00 per share, +28% vs today

Method: P/E on 2027 earnings, cross-checked with a sum of the parts

Scenario	Key inputs	Value / share	vs price
Bear	EPS €4.00 × 5x Margin falls below the 5% floor; Chinese price war	€20.00	−29%
Base	EPS €6.00 × 6x Margin holds around 5.5-6%; dividend maintained	€36.00	+28%
Bull	EPS €7.00 × 7x futuREady savings land; margin back above 6.5%	€49.00	+74%

We value Renault on 2027 earnings per share at a single-digit P/E, the range European volume carmakers have traded in through the cycle. Consensus implies about €6.6 of 2026 EPS (price / 4.3x); we use €6.0 in the base case to stay below the street. The sum of the parts is a sanity check, not the target.

The number to watch: 2026 operating margin below 5%, or automotive FCF well below €1bn

Risks, mitigants and what would make us sell

Risk	Mitigant
European price war with Chinese brands	Dacia's cost position; plan cuts €400 of variable cost per car a year
Raw-material and energy inflation	Pricing power held in 2026; costs partly passed through
Execution of futuREady	Two-year development cycle already used on 2026 launches
Mobilize credit risk if used-car prices fall	Investment-grade funding; diversified retail book

WE SELL IF

- 2026 operating margin below 5%, or automotive FCF well below €1bn
- Automotive net cash below €5bn without a clear use
- Another guidance cut at the February 2027 results, or a dividend cut
